ASK YOURSELF THE FOLLOWING:

What are my personal and professional goals?

Reflect on your short-term and long-term goals, both personally and professionally. How would this side hustle align with these goals?

Example: Health, Fitness, Travel, Knowledge, Personal Relationships, Work-Life Balance, Financial Stability, Personal Growth, Giving Back, Career Advancement, Skill Development, Networking, Education and Training, Overall Workplace Satisfaction.

What is my long-term vision?

Think about the bigger picture, where do you see your side hustle going in the future. Consider your ultimate goals and aspirations for your venture and how it fits into your overall vision for your life and career.

What is my financial situation?

Evaluate your financial resources, including savings, income, and expenses. Determine how much capital you can invest in your side hustle and whether you have a financial safety net to support you during the start-up phase, typically 3+ years for start ups.

What is my availability?

Assess your current commitments and availability of time, energy, and resources to dedicate to your side hustle. Consider how much time you can realistically allocate to your venture without neglecting other important responsibilities.

ASK YOURSELF THE FOLLOWING:

PART 2

Am I prepared for the lifestyle changes?

Consider the potential lifestyle changes that come with entrepreneurship, such as irregular work hours, financial uncertainty, and the need for flexibility. Assess whether you're prepared for the challenges and adjustments that may be required.

What are my passions and interests?

Consider what activities or industries you're genuinely passionate about. Starting a side hustle in an area you enjoy can increase your motivation and satisfaction.

What are my strengths and skills?

Assess your skills, expertise, and areas of strength. Leveraging your strengths can give you a competitive advantage and increase your chances of success.

What are my limitations and weaknesses?

Be honest about your weaknesses and areas where you may need improvement or assistance. Identifying your limitations upfront can help you plan effectively and seek support where needed. Also consider what hiring out these skills will cost you.

Do I have a support system?

Reflect on the support network available to you, including friends, family, mentors, and peers. Surrounding yourself with supportive individuals can provide encouragement, advice, and assistance when needed.
